1. Introduction

This CSR strategy of Berati Tours Albania (BTA) links our entrepreneurial activities to its social and environmental impact. The business goals for sales and profits are not discussed here - the economic viability of BTA is tacitly assumed. Nevertheless we mention economic goals being part of the social impact on local communities, such as the creation of new income opportunities by an innovative tourism programme.

Our commitments towards ecological, social and economic goals are directly translated into promising actions that support the achievement of these goals. But, realistically speaking, the field of possible activities is very wide; not all desirable measures can be processed at the same time. Secondly, not everything is in your own hands when dealing with social processes. Being aware of these limitations, this CSR strategy of BTA at least puts together both, target horizons and promising actions, into a clear and transparent medium-term planning horizon, a strategic framework to decide on concrete action for the next 5 years. This framework is supportive of the annually updated business and action planning where further focal points are set, measures are selected and regularly observed, and are finally re-evaluated with the help of internal quality management (see 3. Sustainability Management System).

2. The commitments of our CSR/ sustainability strategy

“Berati Tours Albania (BTA) is a well established Destination Marketing stakeholder (DMC) for Albania. We believe in self-empowerment of the local communities towards better and sustainable living conditions in this region. We contribute by raising awareness, by networking activities and by developing & realizing projects in different fields. Basically we operate as incoming tour operator & travel agent for Albania and neighboring countries, because we see international tourism as an important, if not most important potential for many places of this region. With a small team and an extensive network of local partners we focus on responsible kinds of tourism that bring benefits to local hosts as well as to our travel guests.”

Being an incoming travel company & DMC who engage with various local and international stakeholders in tourism, namely transport companies, hotels and restaurants, tour guides, local attractions, other travel agencies and tour operators, and last not least the travel guests themselves, we see us in a key role of influencing the sustainable development of tourism and hospitality in our region. We aim to follow, implement and promote good sustainability practices to maximize positive impacts and minimize negative impacts on tourism of our operations and to influence our clients and partners to do the same. We are committed to promoting sustainability in general.

We further subdivide our sustainability policy into 4 fields of interaction. Each field consists of a set of principles and practical actions accordingly. Here we put together our policy commitments. After, we define a number of positive actions related to each of them in the following chapters.

1. Implementation of a sustainability management structure: We commit to sustainability management and to complying with all national legislation, regulations and codes of practice.

2. Sustainable business culture: We commit to an internal business culture that practices human rights, fair and transparent working conditions, and having a clear social & health policy. We also commit to practice environmental protection by reducing energy and water consumption, minimizing air pollution; solid waste reduction & recycling policy; preferring the use of sustainable goods and services.

3. Sustainable supply chain: We try to achieve a tourism supply chain that is fully sustainable. We are strongly against harming wildlife and polluting the environment. We aim at safeguarding the authenticity of the communities and the natural environment. More specifically, related to the travel services we provide:

a) Transport Services: Travel without transport is hard to achieve, but the transport solution is an important aspect of sustainable tourism. We do our best to decrease the pollution level of all of our tourism related activities.

b) Accommodation Services: The partner accommodations play an important role, and have to be stimulated and motivated to adapt sustainable practices.

c) Tour leaders, local representatives and guides: We prefer involving locals in our programmes, and allow them an opportunity of regular income.

d) Excursions and other local activities: We aim at tours that only leave a minor ecological footprint and safeguard the authenticity of the communities;

e) Distribution partners/ agencies: Our aim is to make sustainable development concrete to each and every partner within our business network, so to improve sustainability among our partners by implementing our policy;

f) Customers' relations: Customers welfare and proper information are key for us. We ensure best possible safety standards and clear & constant communication to our clients, prior to booking, while travelling and after the travel.

4. Development of the local communities: We aim to maximize positive impacts and minimize negative impacts in our destination to ensure the sustainable development of the places that we operate in. Local development projects and consulting are part of our business portfolio.

3. Implementation of a sustainability management structure

As a precondition of a strategy aiming towards sustainability, we have to set some normative standards to our business management. It is important to implement a quality management system which allows to monitor and evaluate not only success in sales & marketing, but also the progress made towards the commitments expressed before. Going more into detail we go for the following actions:

- Appoint a sustainability coordinator responsible for sustainability aspects;
- Dress a sustainability mission statement and written sustainability policy (this one!) that aims for an improvement of the socio-cultural, economic and environmental impacts of BTA's activities; publish & communicate it to our staff, customers, partners and suppliers;
- Have an action plan with clear & realistic targets, actions, measures, responsibilities and time planning, also in terms of sustainability;
- Have in place a documented monitoring and evaluation process measuring also the success of the sustainability policy, objectives and targets;
- Conduct baseline assessment of the company's performance on sustainability; have in place an assessment system allowing to identify the sustainability performance of key suppliers/partners;
- To ensure company's transparency in sustainability by public reporting and communicating;
- Collaborate and actively be involved in external forums and working groups which are supportive to sustainability in tourism;

This all - it goes by itself - by complying with national legislation, regulations and codes of practice.

The structural support of the development of local communities are part of our business portfolio and expertise. So it goes by itself we believe in self-empowerment of the local communities towards better and sustainable living conditions in this region, and we contribute by raising awareness, by networking activities and by developing & realizing projects in different fields. More concretely we aim to ensure the sustainable development of the places that we operate in, by ...

- NOT promote souvenirs which contain threatened flora and fauna species as indicated in the CITES treaty and the IUCN 'Red List'; or historic and archaeological artefacts (except as permitted by law);

7. Afterword

Following confidently a social responsibility strategy (CSR) or "sustainability strategy", a company inevitably is acting politically, in the best sense of the word, because it actively takes care of societal issues beyond business making. It sees entrepreneurial freedom as an opportunity of specific social circumstances, as a social practice which must not weigh on the general public's interest, but is responsible for it. It is not about "profit at all costs", but on the contrary about socially and environmentally compatible business practices increasing the „overall benefit”.

In contrast to a pure marketing strategy, which focuses on effectiveness and efficiency criteria to improve the quantitative operating result (sales/ profit), the CSR strategy takes into account an extended target horizon for the orientation and evaluation of the entrepreneurial activity. Sales and profits do not lose their importance; however, there are additional social and ecological success criteria (norms) alongside them. The target system becomes more complex, but at the same time becomes sensitive to the consequences of economic activity in other areas of society. Marketing is thus more farsighted, and we see this also being in our own favour.

This is not about "ideology" or "do-gooder" in a negative meaning. As the past decades have shown, it was politically irresponsible, or at least naive, in many fields to let the ground to the "self-regulating" forces of free markets. As a result the political elites have only largely disempowered themselves under the pressure of a globally acting private lobby. The capital now unleashed shifts from one global crisis to the next, and the public sector is finally not shy to intervene massively in the market, going against the neoliberal principle referred to before. So, if social and ecological arguments still do not really matter, it may seem especially naive from a businessman's point of view to get involved voluntarily with a CSR strategy. But there are three arguments that support us in our favour for this CSR strategy:

- the personal conviction that we must not ignore sustainable forms of doing business in the interest of everyone, and it is therefore worthwhile to set a good example in order to motivate further actors from business, politics & civil society;
- In our perception (in Western Europe rather than in Albania) consciousness change has already started in many areas of society, and market niches have emerged that honor or even require a CSR strategy;
- Currently, the Corona crisis could lead to a further surge in CSR: there is hope for a political rethink at the state and international level that places the economy at the service of the natural basis of life and society more than vice versa.

However, from an entrepreneurial standpoint, a CSR strategy makes sense only if the extended, socially sensitive target horizon will receive a major recognition among policy makers and market participants, at least in the medium term.
